

2020 NBCEC Brown Bagger Beef Genetics Webinar Series

Please see attached and confirmed program agenda for the upcoming Brown Bagger webinar series. Many of you have already registered and we appreciate the ongoing support. If you've not registered please plan now to join Drs. Matt Spangler, Darrh Bullock and me, for the 17th National Beef Cattle Evaluation Consortium 'Brown Bagger' Webinar series. The webinar series is set to run on Wednesday's in October (7, 14, 21,28) at noon central time. The series will feature internationally recognized speakers discussing topics (subject to change) including:

1. Development and utilization of decision support tools and selection indexes in beef cattle
2. Impacts and development of beef on dairy mating systems
3. Improving National Cattle Evaluation systems through expanded data collection, improved models and validation
4. Expanding phenotypic record collection using commercial cattle as a data source

Intended audience:

The target audiences for this educational program include county, district and state extension specialists, college/university beef instructors, allied industry personnel (including beef veterinarians) and other educators working with producers on beef production systems.

How program works:

All presentations will be delivered via the Kansas State University ZOOM web conferencing system. All slides and audio will be delivered via the internet using a common web browser. A call in number will be available for audio stream. After you register, information on connecting to the web conference system will be sent out prior to the first session. Each segment is scheduled for approximately 1 hour. You may login after 11:30 AM to be prepared for the noon start. All slides and audio presentations are archived for future availability to participants and works nicely to assist in future classroom educational efforts. We will circulate a full agenda in advance of the first session. Please register for the series if you plan to attend one or more of the sessions. No need to notify me if you are unable to attend a specific session.

Please register for the webinar by clicking on the URL below: (The only way to register!)
